Teacher Comments:

Franklin has made some great progress this year. Although he is 'below' for his age in reading, writing and maths, with help and support, and a determination to succeed he can close the gap. He is making good links between reading and writing and Early Words, getting a bank of basic words he knows. He likes structure and knows exactly what he needs to do everyday.

This year he has developed very well socially and has learnt to play with others positively and they with him. He is kind and caring and helps others in need. At times, he comments for effect to get attention from others, and will soon find more appropriate ways. He is very social and enjoys all aspects of school.

Keep up your reading, writing and maths in the holidays. Sumdog, Mathletics and Reading eggs, plus other educational programs will help you to progress, but it is important to read books and keep up your alphabet names and sounds too, as we don't want all your hard work to be forgotten in the holidays. Have a great Christmas!
